

A Future-Proof Organization

Remodeling the Organizational Design of our lives is spent at work. This means that our jobs greatly impact our quality of life.

1/3

The crisis that we have experienced in the past year brings a new meaning to the workplace—an opportunity for us to reimagine our organizations.

Do your organizational structures and ideologies still fit for the new way of working?

Four Areas to Consider in Your Organization's Design:

Working Place and Hours

Ensure productivity, whenever and wherever your people choose to work from

Organizational Structure

Define how you want to work and organize

Impact Measurement

Identify the way to measure impact between your input vs output culture

Goals and Outcomes

Think of what you want to achieve together as an organization

If you could start with a blank page and design an organization from scratch, what would it look like?

Find out more on how to prepare your organization for the future so you are ready for any unpredictable changes.

Find out more shl.com/future-proof-organizations